1) The Medieval Academy of America Accepting Applicants for Schallek Fellowship and Awards for Research in late-medieval Britain
   - Deadline: October 15, 2018
   - Amount: $30,000

   The Medieval Academy, in collaboration with the Richard III Society-American Branch, offers a full-year fellowship and five graduate student awards in memory of William B. and Maryloo Spooner Schallek. The fellowship and awards are supported by a generous gift to the Richard III Society from William B. and Maryloo Spooner Schallek.

   The Schallek Fellowship provides a one-year grant of $30,000 to support Ph.D. dissertation research in any relevant discipline dealing with late-medieval Britain (ca. 1350-1500). The annual application deadline is 15 October.

   The Schallek awards support graduate students conducting doctoral research in any relevant discipline dealing with late-medieval Britain (ca. 1350-1500). The $2,000 awards help defray research expenses such as the cost of travel to research collections and the cost of photographs, photocopies, microfilms, and other research materials. The cost of books or equipment (e.g., computers) is not included. The annual application deadline is 15 February.

   Applicants to both Schallek programs must be members of the Medieval Academy. Graduate students who are members of the Medieval Academy and who seek support to research and write Ph.D. dissertations on topics related to medieval Britain before 1350 or on any other medieval topic should apply to the Medieval Academy Dissertation Grant program.

1) Spencer Foundation Invites Proposals for Education Research Projects
   - Deadline: November 1, 2018
   - Amount: $50,000

Established in 1962, the Spencer Foundation is dedicated to the belief that research is necessary to the improvement of education. To that end, the foundation supports high-quality investigations of education through its research programs and the strengthening and renewing of the educational research community through its fellowship and training programs and related activities.

Through its Small Research Grants Program, the foundation is accepting grant proposals of up to $50,000 for education research projects. In keeping with the foundation’s mission, the program funds academic work that will contribute to the improvement of education, broadly conceived. Examples of previously funded projects include an experimental study of how college students use visual representations in solving math problems; a study exploring the process of racial and rural identity formation among African American high-school students who attend de facto segregated schools in the rural South; and a mixed-methods study focused on the different types of knowledge novice and experienced teachers draw on in teaching for reading comprehension.

To be eligible, principal investigators and co-PIs must have an earned doctorate in an academic discipline or professional field or appropriate experience in an education research-related profession. In addition, the PI must be affiliated with a college, university, school district, nonprofit research facility, or nonprofit cultural institution that is willing to serve as the fiscal agent if the grant is awarded.

1) American Council of Learned Societies Accepting Applications for Religion, Journalism & International Affairs Program
   - Deadline: October 24, 2018
   - Amount: up to $70,000

   The American Council of Learned Societies is accepting applications to its Luce/ACLS Program in Religion, Journalism & International Affairs.

   The program is a two-part initiative designed to foster new connections between scholars and journalists covering international affairs and, to that end, offers an interrelated set of awards, including programming grants for universities and fellowships for scholars in the humanities and social sciences who study religion in international contexts.

   Luce/ACLS RJIA Fellowships support scholars in the humanities and related social sciences with a desire to connect their specialist knowledge with journalists and media practitioners. The ultimate goal of the research should be a significant piece of scholarly work by the applicant and concrete steps to engage journalistic and media audiences.

   ACLS will award up to six fellowships for the 2019-20 academic year, with notifications to be sent via email by late March 2019. The award carries a stipend of $55,000, plus funds for research costs and related scholarly activities of up to $5,000. Recipients who relocate to take up residency during the fellowship year at one of ACLS’s three university partners are eligible to receive an additional $10,000 to defray the costs associated with the relocation.

   To be eligible, applicants must be a citizen or permanent resident of the United States as of the application deadline date; have a PhD degree that was conferred by the application deadline; and be able to attend and participate in two program-sponsored events.
